The Dangers of Artificial Intelligence

There is no denying that artificial intelligence (AI) has been broadly impactful in making our day-to-day lives more accessible and efficient; however, AI poses serious and probable dangers as it advances. Therefore, current and future developers of AI must fully understand their systems by becoming aware of the potential risks involved before development can continue.

Job Loss

AI systems work at much more consistent and fixed rates than humans; therefore, there is increasing human job loss with AI taking over. Lower to middle-class jobs are especially subject to these changes, leaving many minority individuals vulnerable. It is predicted that from now till 2025, eighty-five million jobs will be lost to AI.

Social Manipulation

An example of this can be viewed through the social media platform TikTok, whose calculated algorithms have been known to project political persuasion and propaganda, distributing harmful and inaccurate information to the public. Another damaging feature of AI is called "deep fakes," which allows individuals to replace a video or image of a person with a picture of another person. Overall, AI gives bad actors further access to spread misleading information.

Invasion of Privacy

The creation of AI has made it possible to track and analyze an individual's every move. CCTV cameras are everywhere, and online algorithms can determine who you are. A great example of this can be shown throughout China's use of facial recognition technology in schools, offices, and other means. Unfortunately, this invasion of privacy can quickly turn into social oppression.
